

Microwave Cooking for Babies and Toddlers: 160 Quick and Easy Recipes from Australia's Microwave Expert

This microwave cookbook contains 160 appealing recipes for babies and young children. Recipes are arranged according to stages of development, from the first experiences of solid food at four months, through to the time children are ready to join in family meals. Every recipe is accompanied by nutritional data, so parents can see at a glance what protein, energy, minerals and vitamins one serve provides. There are special sections on party food and healthy snacks for hungry toddlers between meals. For parents in a rush, the recipes give handy advice on freezing portions in advance and defrosting in the microwave. In addition, the author has included an introduction to microwave cookery for newcomers, and there is information introducing foods to babies, sample meal plans for different ages and tips on how to deal with the child every parent dreads - the fussy or reluctant eater.
